Greetings!... Minutes ago today, I had the displeasure of being, unfortunately, interrupted by way of a phone call from a Mr David Berry, who, from what I understood, was to call me in order that a representative within the OIG of the Copyright Office (Library of Congress) contacts me as to my complaints with respect to the Copyright Office. However, what Mr David Berry did was contact me, so as to vent his apparent frustration over a pending case in which NARA, the Copyright Office, nor the Library of Congress are a party of! I find Mr David Berry's conduct to be aggressive, rude, and unethical, possibly mired in a type of stigmatisation as to the reason as to why I was treated in such disdain.

As a result of no one from the Library of Congress or the Copyright Office responding to very urgent matters, several external respective government agencies have been contacted.

It is fair to note that, thus far, I've yet to hear any response from any government agency addressing all of the issues raised to the Copyright Office and the Library of Congress. Furthermore, even when promised that someone will contact me, none have responded.

Due to my being insulted and offended by the Copyright Office and the Library of Congress simply as a result of raising highly imperative issues related to the processing of my Applications, Deposits, and Copyright Registrations, I have chosen to refrain from all phone contact.

Greetings!.. Today, on January 20, 2026, at 10:30AM EST, I received a phone call from you at 301-837-0369, in which you addressed me with respect to a pending case, unaffiliated with NARA, the Copyright Office, or the Library of Congress. Additionally, you informed me about a [REDACTED], she of whom I've already informed you has yet to return any communication besides that of her first form of contact by way of email.

In any case, you are urged to refrain from communicating with me in any form, as I find your conduct to be offensive, unreasonable and unethical beyond what I trust your job description to entail.

As far as my contact with NARA, upon my research, I was informed to check with NARA as to whether or not Copyright information has been appropriately archived with NARA, as such agency is the holding of all government documents -- including the Copyright Office.

Again, please don't contact me again!

'~Respectfully,

Krista Dandridge-Barnett
